Social Sprouts – This week, our social sprout campers will practice social thinking and pragmatic language concepts, such as the group plan, size of the problem, expected and unexpected choices, flexible and stuck thinking, perspective taking, and zones of regulation. These are all helpful and necessary concepts for students to regulate their emotions and successfully interact with peers and will be targeted through crafts, small group activities, and structured play time.

The kiddos will be in the kitchen during this hands-on and tasty week of camp, practicing turn taking, vocabulary and describing, following directions, and much more -- all while enjoying a yummy treat!
